Lee las indicaciones y contesta lo mejor que puedas, vas a escribir tres ejemplos donde tengas la necesidad de saltar y después dibujaras dos deportes donde se necesite saltar para practicarlos.

Las partes de un salto son:

Al igual que en la carrera, en la fase de vuelo los pies están en el aire, pero en el salto lo están durante más tiempo.

Saltando puedo superar obstáculos, coger cosas que estén muy altas. Bailar con muchos saltos. Lanzar por encima de un obstáculo.

Escribe ejemplos de la vida cotidiana en los que utilices los saltos.

- Saltar un charco en la calle.

- _____

- _____

- _____

Piensa en dos deportes en los que se utilicen los saltos. Dibújalos y di sus nombres. ¿Cómo es el salto que se realiza?

Homework

In your notebook, write 10 sentences about things you have experienced in your life, and make a drawing for each one. Remember to color your drawings, and use red for capital letters and periods. Take a look at the examples below, but you must not use them (no puedes utilizar las oraciones del ejemplo, haz las tuyas).

Grammar rule:

S + have/has + verb in past participle + complement

S + haven't/hasn't + verb in past participle + complement

1. I have baked a cake.

2. My sister and I have swum in the ocean.

Homework

Print and paste or copy the following reading exercise in your notebook; fill in the blanks with the correct words.

One warm, sunny day, a proud and regal lion was sleeping on the African savanna. Suddenly, something woke him. Feeling terribly annoyed, he opened his eyes, turned and saw that a little mouse had tripped over his tail.

The lion grabbed the mouse with one of his big paws and roared loudly, "What are you doing? I am the King of the Savanna! No one runs across my tail. I think I will eat you for my breakfast!"

"Please, Mr. Lion, don't eat me!" squeaked the mouse. "I was running and I didn't see your tail."

"I'm in charge around here. I do what I want when I want," roared the lion again. "I've chased zebras, giraffes and elephants. I've _____ faster than a cheetah and won a race. I've also _____ lots of animals—birds, lizards, rabbits and... mice! Mice are my favorite snack!"

As the lion was opening his mouth, the terrified mouse saw the lion's huge teeth and said quietly, "I'm very sorry for tripping over your tail. I won't do it again. If you let me go, I'll never forget your kindness. I know you're a big, strong animal, and I haven't _____ anything great like you have, but one day I might be able to help you."

"A tiny animal like you? Help me?" laughed the lion. "That's the funniest thing I've ever _____! But I'm feeling rather generous today, and you've made me laugh. Off you go, little fellow. Run along! What are you waiting for? If you don't hurry up, I'll change my mind."

The little mouse ran away as fast as his legs could go. He heard the lion still laughing in the distance.

A few days later, the mouse was running through the savanna again. Suddenly, he heard a terrible noise. "Oh no!" thought the little mouse. "It might be an angry elephant! Or even a crocodile! It must be a large animal to make such a racket!"

Frightened, he sat very quietly, and then he moved a little closer toward the noise. As he peered through the grass, he saw a lion, the same lion whose tail he had _____ over just days before. The noise was the lion crying. He was caught in a hunter's net and he couldn't escape.

"Hello," said the mouse, "do you remember me?"

The lion looked around for a moment before he spotted the mouse. "You're the little fellow from the other day!" cried the lion. "Please, please can you help me? I can't get out of this net, and I'm scared that a hunter will come!"

"Of course, Mr. Lion!" said the mouse.

The mouse scurried up to the net and started to chew through it with his sharp teeth. The lion watched him anxiously. After a few minutes, he had _____ a hole big enough for the lion to crawl out. The lion stretched his legs happily. He was free!

"I told you that one day I would help you," the little mouse squeaked.

The lion bent down to him. "Thank you so much, little mouse," he said. "I see that I was wrong. It doesn't matter if you're big or small. You can always help someone! I'll never forget what you've done for me."
